

SPANISH INFLUENZA

Resembles Old Fashioned Grip

The symptoms of Spanish Influenza are very similar to old fashioned grip—pains throughout the body, extreme dizziness, sleeplessness, chills, high fever, headache, disturbed digestion with running at the nose and eyes. And excessive spitting, showing an inflammation and congestion of the mucous linings.

Manifested by Catarrhal Condition

With the first symptoms of Influenza, it is well to consult your family physician at once. It is not the disease itself that is to be feared so much as it is the complications which may follow. To ward off Spanish Influenza or as an aid to returning health after an attack, nothing is any better than Dr. Hartman's World Famous Peruna.

For Catarrh of Every Description Take PE-RU-NA

The well known and direct action of Peruna in restoring and maintaining a healthy condition of the mucous membranes throughout the body makes it the greatest disease preventing and health restoring remedy known to science.

In an address to Congress assembled in joint session, President Wilson announced the terms of the armistice which ends the world war because they strip Germany of the power to renew it. Evacuation of all the invaded territory, including Alsace-Lorraine, reparation for all damage done, occupation by allied forces of principal gateways to Germany, handing over of the principal units of the German high seas fleet, surrender of enough war material practically to disarm the German forces, and the occupation by America and allied forces of strategic gateways to Germany to enforce the fulfillment of terms of peace are the principal features.

In a message addressed to Secretary of State Lansing, Dr. Solf, the German Foreign Secretary, requests that President Wilson intervene to mitigate "the fearful conditions now existing in Germany." According to a German wireless dispatch received in London, Dr. Solf says he feels it his duty to draw President Wilson's attention to the fact that the enforcement of the armistice conditions, especially the surrender of the transports, means the starvation of millions.

The American army had reached a total strength of 3,764,677 men when hostilities ceased 11th, according to official figures at the War Department. Of that number, 2,000,000 had been sent to France, Italy or Russia. The remainder were under arms in this country.

LINCOLN A COMING FIELD.

Writing of Lincoln county in the Oil City Derrick recently, George A. Whitney, well known oil scout, says: "One of the newest fields to attract attention in the state of Kentucky is Lincoln county, and indications are that this field has been overlooked by many of the oil men. It looks like one of the coming fields of the State and while the wells are not of the rusher kind, they are like those that make money on a long pull. An event in the commercial history of the county took place at Waverly, on the Southern Railroad, when the first tank of crude oil ever produced in Lincoln county was shipped to the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky's plant at Louisville by the Daniel Boone Oil Company.

"While Waverly has for some time been quietly and without ostentation, gaining an importance as the center of enterprise for the southern half of the wealthy and progressive Lincoln county, it remained for its Commercial Club to add to its laurels by securing the establishment at that point of the terminus of the nine line from the oil field about six miles northeast of the town. The citizens of Waverly, recognizing the importance of the oil development, became boosters for the industry without exception and through the efforts of Moore Thompson, the southern half of Lincoln county was leased by the Daniel Boone Oil Company and other companies.

"About January 1, 1917, the first test well in the south end of Lincoln county was completed on the Albert Schuler farm by the Daniel Boone Oil Company, and as this well had a good show of oil with a strong flow of gas it justified the drilling of additional wells in that section, but it was not until the following July that oil was found on the Joseph Wieland farm on the headwaters of Buck creek, and at this date the Daniel Boone Oil Company has 17 producing wells on the Wieland farm and 53 wells have been drilled in that section—30 oil wells and 13 dry holes. The oil is found in the Corniferous formation, more commonly known as the Irvine sand at a depth ranging from 200 to 350 feet and is from 10 to 50 feet wide.

"About 20 years ago, seven shallow wells were drilled in the headwaters of Green River, all being producers, and one well in that section of the county is reported to have flowed from the Sunnybrook sand at a depth of 800 feet. This sand in the Ohio fields is known as the Trenton rock, which is the right name for it. At about this time two wells were drilled on the Baughman farm, 2 miles south of Stanford, to the Sunnybrook sand GALLEY, one of which is furnishing gas to the Baughman home, and the other well was reported as a five-barrel oil well. The sand was found in that section at a depth of 735 feet.

"Among the companies operating in the Lincoln county field are: The Florence Oil Company, Newton Oil Company, Wyoming-Kentucky Oil Company, Devedere Oil Company, and the Daniel Boone Oil Company. These companies are running eight drilling machines in the field, but with a pipe line to handle the production there would be much additional drilling done by such companies as the Cosden Oil Company, Wood Oil Company, New Dominion Oil and Gas Company, White Brothers and a syndicate of Chicago and New York capitalists, and all are holders of territory in Lincoln county that is bound to be tested out. The only pipe line in the county is that of the Daniel Boone Oil Company, which has just completed after a long and tedious wait to get pipe and pumping outfits to equip the line. It has certainly been a red letter day for the Daniel Boone Company and the citizens of Waverly in general for the new enterprise in the county, which some day will mean a large source of income for the land owners from their royalties and the business people in general."
